Are Brookies™ products sold in retail stores?

Brookies™ products are not sold in retail stores; they are designed exclusively for non-profit organizations to support their mission of assisting families in need.

Are Brookies™ Diapers and Training Pants considered Unisex?

Yes, they are designed for effective absorption for boys and girls.

Why are Brookies™ Diapers packed in plastic bag cases instead of cardboard boxes?

Brookies™ Diapers are packed in plastic bags instead of cardboard boxes to reduce shipping costs. This allows more diapers to be available for families in need, aligning with the mission to maximize the impact on communities.

Can we order Brookies™ in a clear pack instead of that branded package?

Brookies™ packaging is designed to be appealing with fun, unisex patterns. However, if you prefer a clear bag with your own sticker, a full 40' container of diapers can be customized. Contact your HDI Wholesale Account Manager for details.

Can we order a different pack count for our diapers, so our volunteers can repack them?

Brookies™ diapers come in packs of 25, a quantity chosen based on common distribution sizes of 25, 50, or 75 diapers, as recommended by the National Diaper Bank Network. For repacking, you can use the 25-pack as a "quality control" measure, eliminating the need for volunteers to count. Custom orders by the container load are available.
